

BLOCKADE IS LIFTED BY HUERTA'S ORDER

DICTATOR NOTIFIES SPANISH
AMBASSADOR AT WASH-INGTON OF HIS ACTION.

INDICATES GOOD FAITH

Regarded in Diplomatic Circles As Evidence of His Intention to Abide by Verdict of Mediators.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, June 8.—General Huerta's dispatch announcing the suspension of the blockade was received at the Spanish embassy early today and its purport was immediately communicated to Secretary Bryan at his home. The dispatch, which the Spanish ambassador had been informed of, indicated that the blockade had been decreed by General Huerta; that official notice would be published in an official paper tomorrow, and that orders had been given to the Mexican gunboats to return to Puerto, Mexico.

General Huerta's action in calling off the blockade was inspired, it was stated, by a sincere desire not to jeopardize the situation. In diplomatic circles Huerta's action was regarded as conclusive evidence of sincerity, that he has placed the fate of his government and the settlement of the Mexican problem fully in the hands of the American mediators and his representatives at Niagara Falls.

May Receive Carranza.
In official circles here the rescinding of the Tampico blockade order was regarded as an indication that General Carranza will be received into the Niagara conference.

Carranza's answer to the mediators, it was generally expected, will be forwarded from Saltillo tonight or tomorrow.

Though unconfirmed here, reports were persistent that the mediators had induced General Huerta to rescind the blockade order only after there had been assurance from the United States as to the disposition of the Antilla.

Secretary Bryan's face was illumined with a smile broader than usual when he received the news. "I cannot discuss with possibility further than to state that the blockade has been suspended," Mr. Bryan said.

"What will be the effect of the latest development upon mediation?" he was asked. "About mediation it is progressing satisfactorily," Mr. Bryan said.

Withdraws Blockade Order.
Washington, June 8.—Unofficial information has been received here that Huerta has withdrawn his order for the blockade of Tampico.

There was no direct advice to this government, but from sources which have been in close touch with Mexican developments, information was received that the blockade had been suspended. There were no early advices from Rear Admiral Badger.

Huerta has decided after all not to blockade Tampico and force the hands of the United States with possibility of disruption of mediation proceedings at Niagara Falls. Mr. Riano, the Spanish ambassador, notified Secretary Bryan officially to that effect today.

Further reports of the movement of the Mexican boats, Bravo and Garagoza, had been received at the navy department today, and Secretary Bryan sent wireless to Rear Admiral Badger to report the position.

Confirmed in Mexico City.
Mexico, June 8.—The Mexican government decided to suspend the effect of the blockade of Tampico which had been ordered.

Gloom at Conference.
Niagara, June 8.—A storm cloud hovered over the mediation proceedings today. The Mexican delegates were anxiously awaiting word from the mediation as to the attitude of the Americans toward the proposed blockade by the Huerta gunboats of the port of Tampico, held by the constitutionalists. The American delegates were informed early today by Secretary Bryan of the attitude of the United States.

May Be Disastrous.
As the Antilla, a Cuban ship laden with millions of rounds of ammunition for the constitutionalists, is en route to Tampico, and should arrive there in another forty-eight hours, a test of Huerta's right to blockade ports held by the constitutionalists was at hand. The American government had several weeks ago ordered Rear Admiral Badger to keep Tampico open to commerce, particularly that foreign shipments might be made unrestrained. Whether that order includes the right of foreign governments to ship arms and contraband of war was the particular point on which the Huerta delegates had sought information.

Disagreement over the right of the Huerta government to blockade Tampico, it is generally realized, might easily lead to a disruption of the proceedings. The embarrassing feature of the United States lies in the fact that not having recognized the Huerta government, it cannot concede that Huerta is entitled to engage in an act violating international laws.

Along with the Antilla incident the mediation was intensely interested in what General Carranza might have to say on his arrival at Saltillo. He is expected to arrive here today, and tomorrow he will send instructions to Rafael Yubaran, his special representative at Washington, answering the last communication from the mediators.

Crisis Safely Passed.
Mediation passed safely over the spoils of disruption. General Huerta came to the rescue, rescinding the order which he has issued for a blockade at Tampico, and circumstances that had impeded the mediation and produced the greatest apprehension since conference began.

"We have received word from Secretary Bryan that the Spanish ambassador has been advised by General Huerta of the raising of the blockade," said Justice Lamar.

Justice Lamar said he was uninformed as to the reason which had actuated Huerta. The mediators said they had taken no action with reference to the movement of the Cuban ship, Antilla, carrying arms for the constitutionalists at Tampico, the incident which brought up the question of the blockade of the American government was said to be that it would be tantamount to partial recognition of the Huerta government to permit the latter to engage in the act of blockade, which is provided for by international law and sanctioned by the council of nations.

MORE LOVE LETTERS FIGURE IN EVIDENCE

Schumann-Heink Feels Sorry For Husband and She Is Suing for "Woman in Case."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, June 8.—Madame Schumann-Heink, grand opera prima donna, expressed sympathy for her husband, who had been arrested on charges of divorce and Mrs. Dean, named as correspondent before the resumption of the trial today.

"He must have loved her very much," she said. "The letters he sent to her were a shock to me when I heard them read in court. I did not understand them all. My lawyers would not explain them to me. A divorce is a very frightful thing and very terrible for everybody."

Counsel for Madame Schumann-Heink said that half a dozen of Rapp's letters to Mrs. Dean remained to be put in evidence today.

There were more impassioned letters addressed to Mrs. Catherine Dean and alleged to have been written by Wm. Rapp introduced in Judge Sullivan's court today.

There was a bit of comedy between the lines. Testimony brought out the fact that several letters to Mrs. Dean from Rapp were intercepted by Miss Frances Ashton, a nurse employed as a detective by counsel for Madame Schumann-Heink.

Ben. Smith, counsel for the defendant, declared that he would center his defense on the allegation that the singer is not a resident of Illinois, and therefore, is not entitled to sue for divorce in the Illinois court.

In the letter of August 1, Mrs. Dean is addressed as "my darling woman." It went on "without you it is awful, just now when require that quick gift of yours. That is honest, simple, and you know that my unbounded admiration for your ability is true. You are the one and only little woman for me, who can keep me true and straight and who can bring out the best in me."

Mrs. Deshot, a woman mentioned by the writer, who he said gave him the idea of coming to Chicago and confronting the madame direct, gave considerable information about her.

The letter was signed "your Billy," and concludes with the statement that what money the writer has "is yours."

Madame Schumann-Heink, garbed in a tailored suit with a modest check, and a motherly little black hat, was in court.

Rapp never repeated himself in addressing his alleged affinity. She was "my darling woman; my own, my one best pet; and gloriously good little woman kid," and then there was reference to two checks which the writer had chosen plans for a blissful future, filled the pages.

"You see," said the letter of August 6, "for the present S. (Schumann-Heink) must believe we are entirely estranged."

MILITANTS AROUSE ANGER OF BRITONS

Repeated Outbreaks Stir Up Public Wrath—Mobs Break Up Suffrage Meetings.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, June 8.—Public anger in connection with the militant suffragette outbreaks is expressed daily with more vehemence to rouse Great Britain. Reports from the provinces show that suffragette meetings or parades yesterday were generally broken up and women treated with violence.

At Ilford, some miles east of London, speakers were pelted with tomatoes and other missiles, and an unsuccessful attempt was made by a crowd under the leadership of a woman, to upset the wagon from which the suffragettes were speaking. The orators escaped into the residence of the local leaders of the militant society, and the crowd afterwards pelted the house with stones and broke every window in the place.

Harry Phipps, who yesterday started the authorities and the public by invading Buckingham palace, is not a suffragette agent, according to the attorney for the prosecution, who appeared against him at the Bow street court today.

The guardians of ancient structures in all parts of the country have adopted the most stringent precautions to protect the buildings against the vandals of the militant suffragettes. Guns and dogs have been requested for this service.

Mrs. May Foust, the American woman arrested with several others yesterday, was arraigned at Westminster police court. The magistrate told her that she would have to give a bond of $50 to guarantee her good behavior for six months, or go to jail for fourteen days. Mrs. Foust chose the jail sentence and announced her intention of at once beginning of a "hunger strike."

INSURGENTS ROUTED FOLLOWING REFUSAL

Albanian Government Troops Attack
5,000 in Vicinity of Tirana
Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Vienna, Austria, June 8.—Albanian government troops today completely routed a force of five thousand insurgents in the vicinity of Tirana, east of Durazzo, according to a dispatch from the Albanian. The insurgents, after a recent victory over the government troops have threatened to make an attack on the capital.

Although the insurgents declared themselves ready to submit to most of the demands of the international commission in regard to the future of Albania, they steadfastly refused to recognize Prince William of Wied, as their ruler, and demanded a nomination of a Moslem prince. Most of them favor Essad Pascha, former minister of war, who was recently deposed and went to Italy.

EXPECT SENATE VOTE ON CANAL TOLL BILL

SENATOR SIMMONS PREDICTS
PASSAGE OF MEASURE BEFORE
ADJOURNING TODAY.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, June 8.—When the senate resumed consideration today of the toll exemption repeal bill, it was expected that a vote would be had on the measure before adjournment. This belief was shared alike by both administrative supporters and the opposition.

Senator Simmons, who with Senator Norris drew up the compromise amendment, said he confidently predicted today that the amended bill would pass by at least ten majority. There were only two set speeches to be delivered before Senator Simmons moved to ask for a vote on the amendment. This action was expected to come tonight.

The speakers were to be Senator La Follette and Poindexter. The proposed amendment would specifically preserve to the United States all rights of control and sovereignty over the Panama Canal.

President Wilson is expected to adopt the senate amendment to the Panama Canal bill, which would waive its right to discriminate in favor of its own shipping, but he does not feel that the senate gives its assent to the repeal in "ungrudging measure" by attaching the amendment.

Mr. Wilson takes the position that as legislation in no way waives treaty rights, he may accept the measure without doing passage of the repeal without limitation.

In answer to a question concerning the Colombian treaty, the president today said Secretary Bryan still had under consideration and no definite decision has been made as to when they will be subject to the senate.

Troops will not be withdrawn from the Colombian coal field immediately. The white house has reason to believe that a conference will soon open about between the forces which will doubtless end in a settlement of differences and make possible the withdrawal of federal troops without further danger.

COMMERCIAL TELEGRAPHERS AT DETROIT CONVENTION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Detroit, Mich., June 8.—Beginning a three days' session, the fourth biennial convention of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America commenced here today, with about 100 delegates and guests attending. S. J. Koenekamp, president of the union, reported the organization in healthy financial condition and steadily growing in membership. The Canadian branch of the order was well represented. Postage companies are expected to come up before the convention. Only routine business was transacted today. Tonight the telegraphers will go on a river excursion to Lake Erie and return.

KING GEORGE AND QUEEN MARRY ATTEND HORSE SHOW

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, June 8.—The final stages of the military competitions for the King Edward VII and King George V gold cups were entered upon today at the International Horse Show, and King George and Queen Mary, with practically the whole of the court and the elite of British society were present. The king presenting the trophies to the winning officers. The competitors who rode in full uniform represented Great Britain, Russia, France, Belgium, Italy, Sweden and Norway. Under the conditions, the King George cup, for officers riding singly, and the King Edward cup, for teams of three, become the absolute property of the country winning them, and as Russia and France had already scored twice in the latter event, the British officers made a strong effort to prevent the cup going out of the country. Belgium had won the King Edward cup once at the King George cup once, while England had not scored in either event. Russia and France also had one success each to their credit in the King George competition.

VANGUARD OF WOMEN ARRIVE IN CHICAGO

Ten Thousand Delegates Expected to Attend Woman's Club Convention
Opening Tomorrow.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Chicago, June 9.—The vanguard of the ten thousand delegates to the twelfth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to be called into session tomorrow, arrived in Chicago today. Scores of automobiles, many of them driven by local club women, whizzed the fair visitors away from the various railway stations to the six largest hotels in the loop district, reserved for the expected throng. From small hamlets to the largest cities in the United States came women to participate in what is expected to be one of the most momentous gatherings of feminine folk ever held in America. For ten days the convention is to be in session, seven of the days to be devoted to consideration of pressing questions of the day. With Mrs. Percy V. Penypacker of Austin, Tex., president of the federation, on hand early to review the general arrangements with Mrs. George Baas, chairman of the local biennial board, the last detail was complete for conducting the sessions—even to the establishment of an emergency hospital corps of women physicians at the Auditorium, where the convention is to be held.

The purpose of the federation's assembly is to bring to a focus the divergent and leading views on all questions affecting woman's sphere, to review the activities of the women's clubs during the preceding two years, and to map out a program for militant action to better the status of woman-kind. While slavery, minimum wages for women, dress reform, scientific home cooking, sanitation in the home, vocational training and protection of the immigrant women from exploitation, are a few of the subjects to be thrashed out by the convention. Public health, art, music, literary extension work, and conservation are among other topics to be brought to the delegates' attention. Authorities of national prominence will address the assembly. On June 14, "Sunday" memorial services in honor of Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker of Denver and Mrs. Francis S. Potter of Chicago will be held in the Auditorium. Both women had long been active in the affairs of the federation. Election of officers is scheduled for Tuesday, June 16, with installation ceremonies the following day, when the real work of the assembly will have been finished. The last two days, June 18 and 19, will be given over to minor social affairs, sight-seeing and trips on Lake Michigan.

NETTIE ST. CLAIR IS DEAD FROM FALL

—Instant Death.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Marinette, June 8.—Nettie St. Clair, aged twenty-two, a professional actress, was dashed together in the presence of several thousand people yesterday afternoon at Lakeside.

She was ascending a distance of eight hundred feet, and as she was over the water, it is probable she unbuckled the safety belt that held her to the parachute so that when she fell she would not be dragged under water. While doing this she probably lost hold. The life preserver she wore held her up in the water and E. A. McCausy and Claude Moore, a local dentist, brought her to shore, but she was dead before she reached there. She fell in two feet, water and impact caused almost instant death.

SEEKS TO ELIMINATE GENERAL STATE TAX

Hutton Believes Income From Corporations and Inheritance Taxes
Should Be Sufficient.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., June 8.—"There should be no state tax for state purposes," this view was expressed today by William H. Hutton of New London, republican candidate for governor. Mr. Hutton has for many years been a student of Wisconsin finances. When a member of the state senate he addressed measures of economy and is known to have a comprehensive understanding of state and national affairs. From a recent investigation of the problem he has come to the conclusion that the taxpayers should not be called upon to pay any state tax.

"The business organization of the state should be such that the expense of the state should be met with the income from corporations, inheritance taxes, etc.," Mr. Hutton said. "This measure already accomplished by modern methods of economy and efficiency of state should do everything required under the present social and economic conditions from its income. The things already accomplished by progressive laws need not be hampered or sacrificed. There should be no backward step. All the desirable things can be continued and the unduly taxed eliminated."

"By adopting modern methods of economy and efficiency the general business of the country has passed through an evolutionary process in recent years which has resulted in greatly increased revenue from money expended. By organizing the business of the state along modern business lines very much greater accomplishments can be had for the money expended."

WILLIAMS WILLOTT AT PARIS CONGRESS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, June 8.—Many thousands of millions of dollars engaged in industry and commerce in the leading nations of the world are represented at the sixth international congress of chambers of commerce and industrial associations, which was called to gather here today. Its business sessions are to last from June 8 to June 10 and during that period are down for discussion many questions of ripe interest and paramount importance to the trade and commercial relations of the entire globe.

The widespread range of the activities of the congress is shown in the fact that delegates from no fewer than thirty-seven nations answered the roll call, while 369 associations, including Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, Mexico, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, the United States and Uruguay.

Among American members of the permanent committee are Edward A. Filene, Boston, Mass.; Bernard J. Shoninger, president of the American Chamber of Commerce in Paris; Harry A. Wheeler, Chicago, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; John H. Fahay of Brookline, Mass.; and George S. Atwood, secretary of the American Association of Commerce and Trade, Berlin.

Canada is also strongly represented with delegates from Montreal, Kingston, Ottawa, Belleville, St. Catharines, St. John's, Sherbrooke and Toronto.

The subjects on the agenda and on which resolutions are to be made and resolutions to be presented to the congress include:

Fixed Easter; calendar reform; unfair competition; proposed international action; customs statistics; new postage; unification of laws concerning checks; postal regulations and clearing; unification of laws concerning arbitration procedure for regulating litigation between citizens of different nations; unification of laws relating to the sale of goods; unification of laws with the view of facilitating, extending and better guaranteeing credit on merchandise; twenty-four hour day; customs stamps for affixing to postal consignment notes; uniform type of bill of lading; far as regards general conditions, for subsidized or regular steamship lines, in order to avoid contradictions, surprises or uncertainties; and a study of assurance policies in force in various countries in order to improve their drafting.

Commercial Problems.
Charles L. Bernheimer, chairman of the committee on arbitration of the chamber of commerce of the state of New York, submitted a plan for international commercial arbitration. The subject of arbitration was moved a resolution approving of reference to arbitrators of controversies between citizens of different countries, and adding that the various arbitrators should clothe foreign arbitrators with power to enforce their functions and should provide for them the protection of the law and give executive force to the judgments pronounced by them.

The subject of arbitration was moved a resolution approving of reference to arbitrators of controversies between citizens of different countries, and adding that the various arbitrators should clothe foreign arbitrators with power to enforce their functions and should provide for them the protection of the law and give executive force to the judgments pronounced by them.

Unfair competition was a subject to which the attention of the congress was called in a report by Max Leclerc of the chamber of commerce of Paris. He laid on the table an exhaustive report of legislation on the subject in various countries.

Regulate Time.
"The Day of Twenty-four Hours" was the subject of a report by Dr. Alfred Geor, president of the Geneva chamber of congress to the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce here today.

Switzerland, he said, was ready to adopt the twenty-four hour day, and the Swiss government would authorize it if it did not fear complications from the fact that two of the four neighboring countries—Germany and Austria-Hungary—will keep to the old system of dividing the day into twelve hour parts. France, Italy, Belgium, Spain and Portugal have adopted the twenty-four hour day.

He urged the need of its universal adoption. "It is often difficult," he said, "to fix the time of departure or arrival of letters and telegrams under the old system, and it must be seen without saying that the reading of the time tables and the interests of all transport enterprises would be greatly facilitated by the twenty-four hour day."

Daylight Saving.
William Willoft of London reported a long list of organizations in England which have passed resolutions in favor of the bill for daylight saving. "That so many as 154 hours of daylight are, to all intents and purposes, wasted every year is a definite fact of civilization," he asserted. "Standard time is so fixed that for nearly half the year the sun shines for several hours each day while we are asleep and it is rapidly nearing the horizon when we reach home after our work is over."

"By a simple expedient this may be overcome. If we will reduce the length of one Sunday in the spring by sixty minutes, we shall have sixty minutes more daylight after 6 o'clock on each succeeding day until autumn."

Dr. von Bottinger, a member of the Prussian house of lords, added a report on the subject, declaring that the daylight saving idea was regarded with great favor throughout Europe. Many German chambers of commerce were working in the reform.

APOLLO THEATRE.

Tonight is amateur night again at the Apollo Theatre. Last week some of the stunts caused no end of amusement in spite of the fact that the majority could hardly expect to make the Orpheum circuit. Tonight promises to be even better.
A sensational fight between a man and a lion will be seen tonight and Tuesday in the photo play feature, "A Prisoner of the Harem." The men gets the best of the lion and holds it until his pet tiger comes to his rescue. One could hardly expect more thrills than this.

No matter how the other markets fluctuate, good, old, common, everyday politeness is still quoted at the same figures.

SAY DEMOCRATS ARE OPPOSING WILSON

Chief Executive is Being Blamed for Party Troubles, States Winfield Jones.

(By Winfield Jones.)
Washington, D. C., June 8.—The Wilson administration is such a rank failure that even leading democrats are turning against the president. Democratic leaders are bitterly blaming the President for all the party's troubles. The state department and the Chautauqua troubadour at its head are the targets for shafts of ridicule over the farcical handling of the Mexican imbroglio and Secretary Bryan's recent announcement that he will again take to the state in pursuit of the nimble dollar that he loves so well despite the pressing duties of his position.

Democratic congressmen are receiving reports from all over the country of great and widespread dissatisfaction with the administration. Democrats in congress, pondering over the reports reaching them of disaffection to the party throughout the country, ask one another, "What's the matter with the administration?" And in nine cases out of ten the congressional answer places the blame upon the White House and the state department. They exculpate congress on the ground that congress is but registering the will of the executive branch of the government.

President Wilson is charged by many of his followers in congress with bringing trouble upon the party through what they say is his highly developed spirit of self-will. His seeming determination to have his way once he has set out upon a course they declare is causing friction. They complain that at times he determines his course without consultation with them, and thereafter is unpersuasive to arguments in favor of the slightest modification of it.

They blame him now for the Mexican situation. Hardly a democrat in congress but will say, "If he had recognized Huerta in the beginning there wouldn't be any Mexican situation." The same sentiment is heard frequently from democrats and republicans out of congress, too.

Democrats admit with chagrin that Huerta has not the best of the United States in every move he has made and in every diplomatic argument. They do not cherish fond hopes that the situation will be much different when it comes to settlement with Carranza. That Dudley Field Malone, collector of the port of New York, issued clearance papers to the Ward line steamer, which sailed for Europe, and aeroplanes for the constitutional army at Tampico without referring the matter to the Bureau of Navigation, the department made at the department of commerce.

Solicitor A. L. Thurman, who is acting secretary in the absence of Secretary Rodfield and Assistant Secretary Sweet, said the first intimation the department of commerce had that there was any question over clearing the Antilla came up after the boat had departed. There was nothing the department could do, he said.

This is merely one instance of the favors shown by President Wilson to the Mexican rebels and an incident of the administration's hatred of Huerta. The president's insistence upon canal tolls repeal is represented by many of the congressmen who will vote against it. The fact is that the administration's policy on this subject is not popular in the country.

His determination to force through the anti-trust bills at this session, even at the cost of holding congress here until fall, is the subject of divided comment. Some democrats hold that to abandon trust legislation now would be to arm Roosevelt, but they fear that the bills will react to the detriment of honest business.

The latter view arises from uncertainty in many minds as to the practical effect of the proposed legislation. In point of fact, many democrats are dubious on this score. It is not plain how deep the new law may strike. Many of them receive letters from constituents saying it will hurt business and hamper development. To tell the truth, we don't know whether it will or not, many democrats in congress say.

The new banking and currency law has not proved out yet and there is uncertainty about that. Of course the discontented democrats make some allowance for their downcast feelings by the fact that the campaign for renomination and reelection is approaching and they concede that they are perhaps super-sensitive.

But they do not conceal from an other opinion that "things do not look good."

C. E. SWEENEY MAKES DETAILED STATEMENT

Edgerton, Wis., June 7, 1914. Janesville Gazette, Gentlemen:

In reply to article under flying headlines in your paper of June 5th, where S. W. Hull, who is there spoken of as a farmer from Milton Junction, but who, when I first met him last January, represented himself as the leading real estate dealer of that place, alleges that he has been defrauded by certain parties, I desire in justice to myself, to make the following statement.

During October of last year I made a deal with Mr. Wm. Kapke, a farmer living in La Prairie, by which he became the owner of 320 acres of land in Kansas, which I formerly owned. On closing this deal with Mr. Kapke, I took a mortgage back on this Kansas land to the amount of $2,900, said mortgage to become due January 10th, 1914. About four weeks after closing this deal with Mr. Kapke, I had a mortgage back on this Kansas land to the amount of $2,900, said mortgage to become due January 10th, 1914. About four weeks after closing this deal with Mr. Kapke, I had a mortgage back on this Kansas land to the amount of $2,900, said mortgage to become due January 10th, 1914. About four weeks after closing this deal with Mr. Kapke, I had a mortgage back on this Kansas land to the amount of $2,900, said mortgage to become due January 10th, 1914.

The first intimation I had of any trouble being made on this Kansas land was when Mr. Doherty told me there was a party trading with Kapke for the land and they wanted him to ask me to extend the time on mortgage one more year. I then asked who was dealing for it and he said he did not care to say, or words to that effect. I told him I would like to have the mortgage paid when due as I could use the money, but would consent to extend the time one year, providing $800 was paid on mortgage when due. This amount I received from Kapke on or before date when it was due. And this time too was the first I knew who was getting the land. Then, too, I had not met him and did not know him at this time. On January 14th I received a phone message from a person who said his name was S. C. Hull, that he was a real estate agent and went on as follows:

"Some time ago I made a deal with a farmer east of Janesville, named Kapke, for 320 acres of land in Kansas, which he said he got from you and for which you have the abstract." I said, "Yes, I have the abstract, but then wanted to know if I would let him have it as he had a party in view to whom he thought he could extend the time on mortgage one year. I said I'd send it to him, but he said he wished to have a talk with me and would come to Edgerton and get the abstract. I arranged to meet him at 10 o'clock the next morning at the Tobacco Exchange. He came as I did and it was the first time I saw him to know who he was. He introduced himself and spoke of what a deal he had made with Kapke and that he had a chance to sell the land at $47 1/2 per acre, but he thought he would accept as he thought it worth more. He then asked what I thought of the deal. I asked what he expected to get for it and he would make me this proposition. That we would divide all I could get over $50 per acre. I said this was considerably more than I received for the land. I told him a few months ago. He replied: "Maybe you're right, Kapke, the man I bought it from, and do not realize its value." I said: "Possibly that is so." He said he had a party who was willing to buy as well as other western land and was posted on their values. I then told him that I'd be glad to sell the land for him if he could, but thought I'd better not too soon.

The above conversation took place in Edgerton, January 15th, the first time I ever saw this man Hull and had no relation to the transaction taken place several weeks prior to this. Hull alleges that I, Sweeney, was interested in the Kansas land, was, to the extent of my mortgage, but in no other way. The second time I met Hull was in Janesville about February. At this time he seemed to think that he had got the worst of the deal. I heard that he had been making remarks about me and spoke to him about it, saying, "Hull, I don't want you to be insinuating that I was in any way concerned in your deal with Kapke. I never knew you until after you had closed and I thought of you as the deal itself until after it was all made. When you asked me to try and sell the land I told you that I would if I asked too much." He also asked him at this time how he expected any one to sell his land for him while he was bowling around on the streets about how badly he was stuck. I said, "I know nothing of your deal, but if you want to get rid of the land I'd advise you to keep your mouth shut and then maybe you or someone else might make a deal whereby you would not be much." C. E. SWEENEY.

PAROLE VIOLATOR GETS PRISON TERM

Thomas McVay Serving Under Commitment Law Given Promotion to State Penitentiary.

One year in the state's prison at Waupun was the sentence passed by municipal Judge H. L. Maxfield on Thomas McVay for violating his parole under the commitment law, when McVay was brought up for trial this morning.

McVay was sentenced to a ninety day term in April for attacking a man eighty years of age in Evansville, and for drunkenness. Last week he ran away from the farm where he had been paroled out and was sentenced in Beloit, while still serving time, a his first term for assault, for drunkenness. After he had escaped from the court room at Beloit he was recaptured and brought back to the Rock county jail. The year's sentence is prescribed in the commitment law for any violations.

The police at Evansville declare that McVay is a parolee prisoner from San Quintan, the California state prison and they will send his description to the California institution to ascertain if he had been serving time there.

James Cochrane of Janesville, pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery and was given the same sentence by Judge Maxfield, six months in the county jail. Cochrane pleaded guilty to having assaulted his wife. The charge of assault and intent to do bodily harm was dropped by District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie.

The case of state vs. John Huginn, charged with exceeding the speed limit was adjourned two weeks. M. Mount appeared for Huginn. The civil action case of Cooley vs. Halyatha Water company was also adjourned for two weeks.

PASSED AWAY SUNDAY AT FOOTVILLE HOME

START TUNING-UP YACHTS FOR RACES IN NEW YORK BAYS

America Boats Tested to Decide on America Boat to Meet English Challenger for Trophy.

New York, June 8.—With the passing of the first few tuning up tests of the trio of yachts striving for the honor of defending the America's cup against the Shamrock IV next September, the skippers and crews are preparing for the all summer series of races which will evolve the successful candidate to be chosen by the cup committee from the Resolute, Defender and Yawee. During the coming week the yachts will pass from Long Island sound to the ocean course off Sandy Hook for three tests under stern conditions over the same course which will be used in the cup races. There will follow a week devoted to repairs and changes in the yachts, to be succeeded by two weeks more of sound racing. All of these events, of which there are eleven on the schedule, will be of a preliminary nature. In fact they have been arranged more to get the boats and crews in condition for the more serious tests off Newport in July and August, when the America's cup committee will sit in judgment on the performances and select the best boat to meet the Shamrock IV.

The starts for all the racing in the Sound will be off Great Captain Island near the entrance to the harbor of Portchester. Half a dozen courses of from ten to twenty miles each have been laid out, some of which will carry the yachts down the Sound beyond the Narrows, and others will take them well up to Executive Rock and over to the Hempstead shore. With starts off Great Captain Island it will be possible to lay a fifteen mile course with the wind on the beam, the breeze is from the prevailing direction, southwest.

Eleven years ago the three cup yachts, Resolute, Constitution and Columbia, were given numerous trials in this part of the Sound, but the starts were off the Long Island shore near Matinecock Point, and it was found difficult to send the boats to the windward on the first leg. By agreement between the managers and the regatta-committee of the New York yacht club fifteen minutes will be allowed between the warning and the starting signals for the first leg. The boats will be given for the yachts to start and in that brief period each boat will be timed to the second as she crosses the line. If she is late, her time will be taken as starting at the end of two minutes although she may be three, five or even ten minutes behind. The struggle for the best places at the line, the weather berth, if the first leg is to windward, a snub place away from the others with the wind on the beam, or to leeward, is the supreme test of the sailing master and many a race has been won or lost through success or failure at the outset.

The helmsmen of the three yachts, George M. Pynchon on the Defender, Charles F. Adams, second, on the Resolute, and William Dennis on the Vanitie, are master hands at the starting line and the best judgment is required. Each as he stands at the wheel must know where his own boat is, how fast she is going, where the other yachts are and how fast they are sailing. He must know when his own boat has the right of way, and when his opponent must give way and in a tight place, not to take an inch or concede one, or the race is lost.

No fixed plan of campaign will be the test under all conditions. With the big yachts the skipper must have help, and the assistance of a cool man with the watch and another to watch the opposing yachts is of paramount importance. Forward, the mates, have their men well drilled, and the handling of sheets, tacks, back stays and all the light canvases require quick action and precision.

It is anticipated that in the early races of the cup series there may be a good deal of confusion on each one of the boats, but with numerous races and sail trials in the smooth waters of the Sound, it is expected that yachts, skippers and crews will appear at Newport on July 7 in the finest possible condition, and that the races of July and August will produce the best racing ever seen in American yachting competition.

Explanation of Potlatch.

The word potlatch is a corruption of an Indian word common among the Pacific coast tribes, meaning festival of gifts. At a potlatch (potlatch) celebration the more personal property an Indian gives away, blankets, ornaments, etc., the higher he stands in the estimation of his neighbors, and the more he expects to receive in return at the next potlatch. The festival is also accompanied by music, dancing and feasting.

JANESVILLE SWAMPS FOOTVILLE NINE IN SLUGFEST CONTEST

Clouting Featured By Two Base Blows Off Simmons Totalling Ten Runs Against Footville's Two.

In the case of Crandall et al. vs. the Footville White Sox Sunday afternoon at the Driving Park, the Milton Collected twice the decision over the Footville White Sox by a verdict of ten to two. Eighteen loud blows coming at the regular periods put the ten tallies across, while Crandall at the head of the Card defense work held the visitors in power, thus showing how the Cards won the case.

For Janesville Butters, Lenahan, Hall, Hill and Owens contributed a total of eleven hits and five of them were good for two bases. Crandall had the Footville swatters swinging at his "waterjohnson" delivery and his smoke ball went steaming past the visitors so fast that nine of them whirled. The Footville sluggers nipped him for five safe drives and E. D. Fraser collected two safe drives, his last being good for a double. Simmons, Footville hurler, had very little on the ball and in three innings the Cardinals had the Footville outfielders running their legs off chasing safe drives. Hall caught faultless ball, nipping every attempt to steal by a safe margin.

In the first the Cardinals lost a good chance to score when Butters, first up, walked, but was out when he slid over second on Lenahan's hit. Lenahan stole second but Owens, the half mile ump, ruled him out for not paying his toe exactly on the bag. Hall hit for two bases, but Hill went out on a fly to center. Crandall had Footville baffled in their session at bat, fanning the last two batters.

In the second Simmons was unmercifully pounded and before the inning was over, Captain Owens could have made good use of a derrier. Owens, first up, hit for a single and Lenahan, named on Neil's wallop, Berger advanced them on his out and Footville hopes scored a notch when Highland fanned. Butters brought them down again when he lined out a double. Lenahan, Hill and Hill came through with run scoring singles, and before the visitors closed the rally, Silverhorn nipping Hill stealing. Janesville then had a fine run lead, the result of seven hits.

In the third Footville scored after two were dead on Fairman's hit, Crandall passing Clark and a single by another Fraser. Owens fanned with runners on third and second. Simmons kept the Cards away from the turning cushion until the fifth, when Hall scored, polling out his third straight hit, and on the same when the Footville infield heaved the ball wild to third and second in an attempt to head him off. The White Sox scored their last run in the fifth, and again it was Fairman who put the cross in the right column. Fairman walked and made third on Clark's single over first, Lenahan making a dandy throw from back of the cushion to head him off. In the sixth Butters lead off with his third hit, which was seconded by Lenahan, and both runners scored on Hill's two base blow. In the seventh they rubbed the defeat in further by slugging out two hits, which netted two more runs.

In the seventh Butters pulled off the most spectacular play of the game when he retired Fairman on a line drive between first and second. The ball was coming like a flash but Cud-dah rolled over and hung on the ball, throwing the runner out by ten feet. In the last inning Fineran singled but was caught asleep off first by Crandall and Lenahan. The Footville aggregation have the ability of putting up a better game than they showed Sunday, and should hit their stride on playing a few more games. Next Sunday the Cardinals will play an all Star nine from the Walworth County League, in the opening at Yost's Park for the summer.

Fredindall, slabman for the Yanks, was hit hard the first five innings, in which the winning team put across a safe lead. Summary:

The London Times, in discussing polo matters editorially points out that the British folks are getting good and weary of doing all the playing on foreign grounds. They would like to be able to see their teams licked at home. As things are at present, the challenger in any international athletic event has to play the title holder on the latter's grounds, and for that reason most of the British polo playing has been done away from home. It is that ruling that annoys the London Times. They would like to see the matter rearranged somehow so that the British polo stars could play at home occasionally. It doesn't seem to occur to the London Times that this thing could be agreeably settled if the British polo team would win a cup once in a while.

Yean Gregg, Cleveland Nap twirler, is real peeved. His inability to work much this summer owing to a lame arm has been the cause of some little caustic comment aimed in his direction, some going so far as to snicker derisively at him out loud. That's why Yean is sure. He says that he'll show up that bunch of cheap bushers that think they know about his arm, and before the season's half over he says he'll be pitching an article of ball such as was seldom seen before. Truth is that Gregg has become quite restless while waiting the bench and he is anxious to get back into his best form and start a winning streak. There are few better than Gregg when he is right, but unfortunately he doesn't seem to be right all the time.

It is Jim Corbett's notion that Jack Johnson is a much overrated fighter. In discussing Moran's chances in the coming fight at Paris, Corbett says that while there could be found a better representative of the white man to meet Johnson, it isn't unlikely that Moran will be unable to cope just the same. Johnson is known to be working hard in preparation for the fight, but Corbett opines that though Jack attains his best he is by no means unbeatable. Smith, who really has a punch and who knows considerable about the fighting business, would be able to make Lil Artha hit the floor in short order. Should Moran fail to turn the trick it might be well to let the Gunboat have a chance at Jack. And the Gunner would go at it with plenty of assurance.

Now that Ty Cobb is a real sure enough author and has published a book, it might be thought that his manner would show it. However, thus far there is nothing in his pose as he walks to the plate that differs from his former behavior and his remarks to the umpire are not at all literary, either.

It is pleasant at least to see that Willie Ritchie doesn't beef unduly over the Charley White fight. All he has said is that he worked like a big hooch all the way. "I was outgassed, outgeneraled and everything else," says Willie, and he admits that he deserved the beating he got for such an exhibition.

As a part of his training in preparation for his fight with Charley White at Milwaukee Tuesday night, Willie Ritchie began a strenuous course in golf playing some weeks ago. He attributes his present splendid physical condition in large measure to the exercise he has recently gained on the links.

Jimmy Viox, the Pittsburgh infielder, has been juggling the ball about quite a bit this season. He already has more errors than all the rest of the Pirates put together.

WILDING FEARED IN COMING CUP BATTLES

Anthony Wilding.

"In Anthony Wilding, whose play is now at its zenith, Brooks, Doubt and Dunlop, the Australians have the strongest tennis team they have ever placed in the courts and one of the most formidable combinations, if not the most formidable, that has ever represented any country," recently declared Maurice McLaughlin, champion tennis of the U. S. McLaughlin does not conceal his fear that Wilding will prove invincible in the Davis cup matches this summer.

Prejudices are most difficult to eradicate from the heart whose soil has never been loosened or fertilized by education. They grow there firm as weeds among stones. — Charlotte Bronte.

CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG And Her Wonderful Career

After her retirement from her successful appearance in opera in Vienna, St. Petersburg and the United States, Clara Louise Kellogg confined herself to concert engagements. Born near Charleston, South Carolina, she became one of the popular concert singers of her time. She was educated in New York City, completing her training under Arditi in London, singing his famous "Waltz Song" for the first time. Her debut was made as Gilda in "Rigoletto" in New York City in the closing year of the Civil War, but her greatest success was as Marguerite in Gounod's "Faust," when it was presented for the first time in the United States. Clara Louise Kellogg, like other American prima donnas, never grew weary of singing the old familiar songs and ballads for encores, and when she sang Gounod's "When to Thy Vision," she transported her hearers to the master's music rendered in telling the story of "two fond lovers on one stem united."

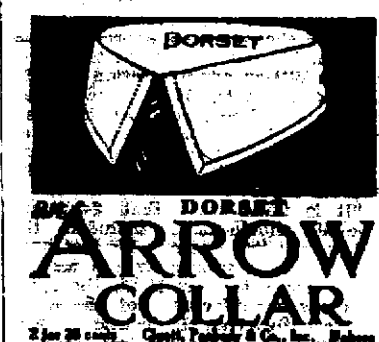

"When to Thy Vision" is to be found on page 475 of "Heart Songs"—that unique volume of songs and music now being almost given free to its readers by this paper for the coupon elsewhere in today's paper.

"Do you believe in long engagements?" "Of course. The longer a man is engaged, the less time he has to be married."

MENTAL MOURNING.

This is the way the Wall Street Journal characterizes Secretary Redfield in his recent attempt to bolster up the Wilson administration and the tariff enactments. It is perhaps a bit caustic but then you know that Redfield placed the trade depression as strongest in the eastern states so that this may account for it. However the Journal says:

"It is unfortunate that Secretary Redfield should have included the automobile trade among his instances of abiding prosperity the rest of us cannot see. Mr. Ford, the most generous manufacturer of them all, has recently given six thousand of his employees the psychological impression that they are out of work, a delusion obstinately shared by the sellers of coats and groceries, who decline to open a psychological charge account."

"Mr. Redfield would probably find a reason for what he felicitously calls 'mental mourning' if he would make his studies and illustrations more comparative. Any one can indicate large production simply by stating the population of the United States. It has to be fed and clothed, warmed and sheltered, and the irreducible minimum of production itself is impressive. It is because Mr. Redfield is a business man himself that his inability to distinguish between this and real prosperity is the more inapplicable."

"To say also that the northeastern section of the country is more depressed than the rest is to deceive his listeners by distorting a map where the great population and production is overwhelmingly within the area so casually set off against the rest of the country. Of the two, Mr. Wilson's psychology is preferable. Its methods, at least, are less sophisticated than this. The patient's heart action is alarmingly weak, but he is free from warts."

"There is just one thing for the democratic administration to do now, if it wants to face the November elections with a condition of prosperity the description of which will not arouse the jeers of any industrial audience. The remedy is to throw into the waste paper basket, without attempt at amendment, the Interstate Trades bill, and the other uncalculated interferences with the freedom and development of the country's business. There is no other way, and to do less will be to encourage an overwhelming defeat, the preliminary threatenings of which are already audible to the trained ear."

"Bodily faith cure at least assumes something worthy of faith. What object for such implicit trust does Mr. Redfield offer as a basis for his industrial faith cure? Is there anything in the record of the present administration, to say nothing of congress, that would encourage a single manufacturer to venture one cent of his own, or anybody's capital, in new enterprise? The question answers itself. This newspaper has never held a brief for any political party, but if the democrats cannot see a fact so patent their case is hopeless, indeed."

"Quem Jupiter vult perdere prius dementat."

McGOVERN BUSY.

McGovern and his senatorial boomlet have taken form rapidly. The governor is a busy gentleman these days. His platform is somewhat complex. It sustains the high taxes, generalizes on national affairs and still discusses state issues at the same time. It is "bull moose" in part, in part it rings true, and between Morris and McGovern it would appear the choice was McGovern. However, there is a catch to be figured with and no one can tell whether Uncle Ike will not step into the arena, if for no other reason than to get even for the slur that was cast upon him by the very men now seeking office when they repudiated the primary law six years ago and sought to block his election. So no one is surprised McGovern is being rushed these warm days preparing for the campaign of his life.

GRADUATION WEEK.

This graduation week at the Janesville high school. The one week in the whole school year for the members of the class who will receive their diplomas, and for the students who have completed their year's work. Many of the graduates will begin life's work at once, will seek employment and enter the struggle for existence. Others, more fortunate, will attend some institution of higher learning to better equip themselves. To all the graduates congratulations are extended for having completed the four years' course. They have but passed one of the milestones of their life; many others are before them, and it remains with themselves to determine whether success or failure attends their efforts.

The women of Illinois are waiting most anxiously the decision of the state supreme court as to whether they have the right to vote or not. Meanwhile they have voted out half the saloons in the state so they do not really care half as much as they might if they had not had the opportunity to demonstrate their ability to do as they pleased just once.

Huerta and Uncle Sam may yet clash if they do not look out. Meanwhile Carranza has declared himself president of Mexico, repudiated all the acts of Huerta and his government since Madero was killed and gave him an excuse to take the field as his avenger. However, it is cool at Niagara falls and the peace conference may continue.

The old soldiers of Wisconsin are gathering at Madison this week to hold their annual state encampment. It is one of the last of these assembling of the boys in blue before the last taps are sounded and it is to be hoped it will be fully enjoyed by the veterans.

It is safe to say that any anarchist who seeks Colonel Roosevelt does not know his man or he would give up the attempt long before he starts. To keep pace with this strenuous expedition one must have in truth seven-leagued boots.

Next Sunday will commemorate the 137th anniversary of the adoption of the first flag of our country, the stars and stripes. Long may it wave over the land of the free and the home of the brave.

June is the month of roses, sweet girl graduates, brides and honeymoon trips. Janesville promises to furnish its share of all the leading features as well as amateur theatricals.

If efficiency experts could make that blue island hen explain how she laid that quarter of a pound egg the cost of living could be materially reduced.

IN THE FUTURE.

"I'm going out this evening, Reginald."

"Oh, is that so, m'dear? I guess I'll go with you."

"Not on your zinc etching. I'm going to meet an old college friend. You say at home with the kid, see?"

"Taint fair, Maggie. To leave me alone every night. Last time you went out to meet a college friend you didn't get in until 2 o'clock and you lost $40."

"You mean men make me sick. You're always hollering. All you have got to do is to sit around and have a good time all day and go to your clubs with the poor women slave down town from morning until night."

Besides, you have no business gabbing with Mr. Jones. He's a regular cat and he has spread gossip around this neighborhood for years. You stay at home now like a good little man and maybe I'll buy you a new spring hat."

"All right, Maggie; you can go out this time, but the next time you leave me at home alone until 2 o'clock in the morning I'm going back home to my father, so there. A man is not a slave. He wants to do something besides take care of the children day and night. To treat me like a dog. Mr. Jones wife bought him three new suits last year and I ain't got a thing to wear."

"Well, so long. I must hurry or I'll be late. Now, don't weep."

"Aren't you going to kiss me good-night, Maggie?"

"Oh, I suppose so—there now, don't sit up for me."

Bend low, O husky Night,
And give my spirit rest;
Hold me to your deep breast
And put old cares to flight.
Give me back the lost delight
That once my soul possessed,
When peace was loveliest,
Bend low, O dusky Night.

And promise, dusky Night,
That folks across the way
Will no piano play
And put all sleep to flight—
That racket is a fright.
That there will not hold sway
Some amateur Calve
To warble all the night.

IS PRAISED BY REVIEWERS

Our New Serial Enthusiastically Indorsed by Critics of Prominent Newspapers.

"The Lapse of Enoch Wentworth," by Isabel Gordon Curtis, one of the most gifted of American fiction writers, will be published serially in these columns, and will prove a rare treat for every reader. The following are but a few of the hundreds of enthusiastic comments on the story from the reviewers:

It holds the interest to the end.—Dallas News.

This novel, which has a well-thought-out plot, is strikingly dramatic in its developments. The story is a strong one, the action rapid, the characters exceptionally well portrayed. Tense to the end, it holds the reader's interest.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A dramatic and exciting romance.—Hartford Courant.

A story well worth reading.—Boston Times.

It is a story written solely for the diversion of the reader and it achieves its purpose; no one is likely to go to bed and leave its perusal half completed.—Toronto Mail.

The story has a high moral purpose. Montreal Star.

A vital, lively story of the drama and the stage. Of high purpose and of skillful, enthusiastic inspiration. It is a bright, fascinating story, told with a thoroughly admirable skill and dash.—Salt Lake City Tribune.

A story which does not let interest lag for one moment.—Savannah News.

Originality of conception is the strongest characteristic in this novel.—Des Moines Capital.

It is an extraordinarily unreal sort of plot, which works itself out into very real situations.—Chicago Evening Post.

Has a Romantic Plot.

This is what the Chicago Record-Herald says of our new serial story, "The Lapse of Enoch Wentworth": "This gripping story of a strange poker game, a stranger bond between two men, a stolen drama and the double regeneration out of which springs unexpected happiness for the wronged sinner, is not the best kind of a story to take up late in the evening, but it is a jolly good tale by aid of which to shake off the blues." It reads rather like a play itself, being full of action, and abounds in dramatic situations and human interest."

DRAWS SIX MONTHS FOR PETTY LARCENY

Evansville Motion Picture Machine Operator Pleads Guilty to "Light Fingering" Work.

Maxwell Popkin of Chicago, who for the last month has been operating a motion picture machine at the new Evansville Opera House, was sentenced this morning to serve six months under the commitment law for petty larceny. Popkin was arrested Saturday by Chief of Police Cal Broughton and brought to Janesville Saturday by Fred Gilman and held for trial this morning.

Popkin had been boarding at the Central House in Evansville, and the second day of his arrival two gold watch chains, stickpins and clasps were missing from the rooms of Mitchell Tuttle and Clarence Green, the latter a former Janesville boy. Sixteen dollars was also taken from a room of an employee, Mrs. Clara Colbert. While the authorities mistrusted the Chicago youth he was not arrested until Saturday, while the theft was committed on the 20th of May.

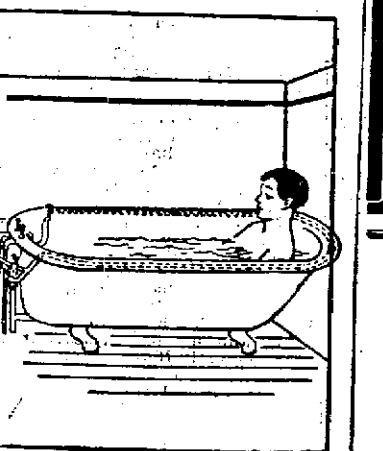

The Evansville authorities learning that Popkin had exhibited jewelry around the town and was "toting" a large caliber revolver and had told several that he had a quantity of jewelry in a safety deposit box in the bank. On this ground he was arrested and the police found the missing jewelry together with a gold watch and a number of small diamond rings in the deposit box. The watch and diamonds Popkin claimed were the property of his wife, who joined him last week.

Popkin agreed to pay back the sixteen dollars to Mrs. Colbert, and District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie preferred the charge of petty larceny against him. When arraigned before Judge Maxfield this morning Popkin waived his exam, pled guilty and was sentenced to the six months' sentence and the youth's wages will go to his wife, who was present in court.

HEATS PORCELAIN BATHTUB

Stream of Hot Water is Circulated Through the Metal.

One of the earliest observations of physics in our early youth was the facility with which the heat departs from the material entering into the construction of the bathtub, as the basis of our unprotected flesh displaces that of the water when we sink our carcass into the depths of the all-enveloping tank. This prompted the remark of the humorist, who said he could not get into the bathtub in winter without his socks on. The newest feature of bathtub building aims to overcome this feature by providing a means of circulation.

NOT WATER CIRCULATES THROUGH THE METAL OF THE BATHTUB.

Being a stream of hot water through the upper part of the tub so that it may be brought to a comfortable temperature before the water for the bath is allowed to enter it. To this end the metal of the tub which comes in contact with the flesh is so thoroughly heated that it does not absorb that of the water contained therein and does not immediately chill when the influence of the hot water is withdrawn, as for instance when the bather's body comes in contact with the porcelain.

Merely Woman's Prerogative.

A mere man objects to paying his wife's millinery bill of $375 for five hats—all purchased in one week. He claims they are not necessities. The ideal: Just give any woman a chance! Five hats! Why, they're absolutely nothing! But any woman willing to go through the ordeal of selecting five hats and getting them to suit her should be allowed to have as many as she wants! It's hard work!

PROGRESSIVES PLAN FIGHT IN EVERY STATE; WANT FORD GOVERNOR IN MICH.

Henry Ford (top left), Theodore Roosevelt and James R. Garfield.

The Progressive party is planning to put up a strenuous fight in every state in the union at the fall elections. In Michigan, carried by Roosevelt in 1912, Henry Ford, the auto man, is being boomed as Bull Moose candidate for governor. In Ohio, James R. Garfield, secretary of the interior under Roosevelt, will head the state ticket. In New York it is planned to name Roosevelt if he will accept. The Progressives are particularly anxious to carry New York this year and it is believed that the colonel is the only man who stands a chance of winning the governorship in that state.

Dog Had Appetite for Chicken.

A chicken-stealing dog, in the Dumbarion (Scotland) district, recently occasioned some anxiety to a number of hen keepers. On a thorough search being made a number of fowls were recovered buried in a field. Some fowls were eaten, and those not required for immediate use were hidden. It was discovered that the cause of the trouble was a large black Labrador dog, which has been roaming the district at will for several weeks.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK STARTS ON TUESDAY

MUSICAL PROGRAM COMES TO-MORROW EVENING IN OPENING 1914 CLASS EXERCISES.

PAGEANT WEDNESDAY

Graduation Night Comes on Thursday, When Diplomas Will Be Presented—Other Notes.

The commencement exercises for the class of 1914, graduating from the Janesville High School, will start Tuesday evening with a musical program arranged by Miss Emily Sebell, city public school musical instructor. The senior class, boys' glee club, girls' glee club and orchestra comprise the organizations that will offer selections from the program. The change from the usual class night to musical night is something new, and an even more interesting program than has been given in past years is expected.

The pageant comes on Wednesday afternoon, with folk dances and May pole dance by a larger number of girls participating this year than before. The fact that so many of the girls participated in pageants in previous years is a credit to the high school. The pageant will commence promptly at three o'clock, and will take place in the same spot of the Court House Park where former pageants have been held. Miss Abell, physical training instructor, is in charge of the work of the afternoon.

On next Thursday night the diplomas will be presented to the graduating class. The program for the evening plans to be most interesting, and will be conducted exclusively by the graduates. The class songs, containing the latest popular songs, with fitting words composed by Miss Lorene Bowman, is to be one of the leading numbers on the program. Miss Alma Gotsland will deliver the valedictory address immediately preceding the presentation of diplomas.

Victor Hemming will present the token to the school, the latter being a large glass case to act as a protector of all the cups and banners attained by the school in forensic and athletic events, not only in the past but in the future as well.

START WIDE SEARCH FOR MISSING FARMER

FRANK A. TANNER OF HARVARD, ILL., DISAPPEARS NEARLY A WEEK AGO.

WAS LAST SEEN HERE

Gets As Far As Janesville On Way To Inspect Dakota Real Estate—Is Last Seen With Mysterious Stranger.

Frank A. Tanner, a wealthy Harvard, Ill., farmer, left his home on Tuesday of last week with the announced intention of proceeding directly to Kenmore, North Dakota, where he was to inspect a piece of real estate, the purchase of which he had under consideration. He arrived in Janesville the same evening and was last seen walking down the platform of the Northwestern depot in company with a stranger. Since then all efforts to locate the man have proved futile although his wife has received an unsigned letter stating that he had arrived in Great Falls, Mont., a fact which is given little credence by his relatives and which adds to the mystery of the case.

Police authorities in Janesville, Harvard, St. Paul, Great Falls and Kenmore, Minn., have been alerted to the search for the missing man and no expense will be spared to locate him, dead or alive.

Falls to Meet Friends.

When Tanner left last Tuesday Tanner was to meet Mr. Anderson and John Pavelle, two real estate dealers of Lake Mills, at Madison, who had agreed to join him there to inspect a piece of real estate in Dakota. They were to meet him on the Northwestern train No. 505 which leaves Janesville at nine-thirty.

Tanner purchased a through ticket to Kenmore, Minn., and was last seen when he boarded the train at Beloit. Investigation on the part of Chief of Police Champlin has revealed the fact that he arrived in Janesville on Northwestern train 315 from Beloit at 10:30 a. m. on Tuesday.

When the St. Paul train pulled in from Chicago a real estate dealer named White, of Milton Junction, conversed with Tanner and then returned to the platform where he saw him go but did not notice him get on the train and that is the last that has been seen of him.

When Tanner boarded the train as had been agreed at Madison, and after making a search through the coaches went on to St. Paul where they wired back after waiting a day and a half, they were informed from a Janesville real estate firm which was transacting the deal, to proceed to Kenmore, which they did, returning yesterday, they phoned to Mrs. Tanner that her husband had not reached Kenmore, or could not be found at St. Paul.

Gets Mysterious Letter.

This morning an unsigned letter resembling that of Tanner, was received by his wife, mailed from Great Falls, Montana, announcing that he (Tanner) was safe and well and was visiting his grandparents in Great Falls. The letter was dated June fifth, which would be three days after he disappeared from Janesville. What adds more mystery to the case is that both of Mr. Tanner's former business partners, the years and his only relatives, outside his immediate family, so far as known, reside in New York state. The contents of the letter were very brief and said that the writer was at home "sometime." The fact that the letter was unsigned and that Mrs. Tanner could not positively identify the handwriting as her husband's, is another baffling point.

Inquiry shows that the ticket purchased at Beloit by Tanner has not been turned in at any of the Northwestern station and that to reach Great Falls he would have to go to St. Paul and then go to the Great Northern line to the Montana city. The conductor on the train declared the fails to remember any man answering the description of Tanner on the train and evidence shows that the ticket at Beloit was not used.

Robbery Theory Scouted.

Mr. Tanner had about fifty dollars on him, persons who have chased his ticket and had no valuable jewelry which would tend to make robbery a motive or any foul play. He is also a man of excellent habits and has been a law-abiding citizen.

His family declare they know of no reason of his mysterious disappearance for he was well liked, had many friends and had no domestic troubles. Chief of Police Champlin is making every effort to locate the man and has sent his description to police headquarters in cities where Tanner might possibly be found. Mr. Tanner's son and the wife of his son, Mr. Nathan, went through here this morning for Great Falls to look for the man there. Unless he is heard from within a short time Chicago detectives will be placed on the trail.

His description is as follows: age, between fifty and fifty-five years; height, six feet seven inches; weight, between 140 and 160 pounds; eyes, a slight blue. He was attired in a mixed grey and brown suit, soft brown hat and carried a small red grip. His hair is dark, mixed with grey and he has a mustache. One of his eyes is artificial.

The land deal in which Tanner was interested was a thoroughly reputable one and the members of the realty firm, the examining party, are now in the search. Tanner owned a farm six miles north of Janesville, known as the Kennedy place which he was considering to exchange for the Dakota property.

Late this afternoon Harvard authorities received a telegram from the chief of police at Great Falls, Montana, saying, "Am holding man wanted." Mr. Tanner was not received and it is doubted if the man held is Tanner.

BEATON TO RETURN EAST FOR SUMMER

Former Janesville Pastor Writes Interesting Letter From Los Angeles, Telling of His Plans.

In an interesting letter to the Gazette, Dr. David Beaton, formerly pastor of the Congregational church, tells of his work at Los Angeles during the past spring and winter and states that he will return east for the summer, arriving in Chicago about the middle of July. His letter follows:

Los Angeles, Cal., June 6, 1914.

I have just closed my lecture work here for the season and had a very great deal of pleasure and some little profit in my experiences. The courses in "applied psychology" and "social science" have been attended largely by the members of two of the leading women's clubs, and this shows their interest in civic affairs. I mention this personality as it has a public interest because of the interest it gives to the interest and the activities of the women here. The possession of the vote seems to have produced a deep sense of their civic and social responsibility and they want to know the facts concerning the health and laws of both body and mind before they act as educators, or social workers.

Another indication of this public spirit among the citizens here, both men and women, is the formation of a society of applied psychology of Southern California. It is headed by Dr. Beaton, and our department of the psychology department of the public schools, and Prof. Doty, head of the city civil service and formerly of Wisconsin university. We will, through the courtesy of the people with the whole problem of the conservation of the citizen, not merely business efficiency, but the health and well-being of the child in the public schools, and our department of the psychology department of the public schools, and Prof. Doty, head of the city civil service and formerly of Wisconsin university. tion were seized and the inhabitants made prisoners. Wisconsin men were prominent among the heroes of Vera Cruz. Among the officers of the navy and marine corps who distinguished themselves for cool indifference to danger and skill in handling their men, three were mentioned in the rear admiral's report for special honors. One of the three was Lieutenant Commander A. Buchanan, U. S. N., of Madison, commanding the First Seamen's regiment. A. De Somer of Milwaukee, chief turret captain on the battleship Utah, and H. H. Roloff of Kenosha, Wis., crossed with on the battleship Arkansas, are also among those receiving special praise.

Admiral Fletcher's report says: "In marching his regiment across the open space in front of the naval academy and other buildings he unexpectedly met a heavy fire from rifles, machine guns, and one pounders, which caused part of his command to break and fall back, and many casualties occurred among them at that time. His indifference to the heavy fire, to which he himself was exposed at the head of his regiment, showed him to be fearless and courageous in battle."

EXPECT FULL HOUSE
AT MYERS TONIGHT

Seat Sale for Dramatic Club Productions This Evening Extraordinary.—Few Seats Left.

The prediction that the Myers Theatre will be filled to its capacity tonight to witness the productions given by the Dramatic Club, may come true, despite the hot weather and the extraordinary sale of tickets and reservation of seats.

More tickets are out than there are seats reserved, and as there are only a limited supply to purchase from, every indication points to a record-breaking house tonight.

The players have all shown a decided improvement in the last few rehearsals, and appear to be ready to present their roles in a very satisfactory manner. The first production, "The Workhouse Ward," will begin promptly at eight o'clock, so that the evening's entertainment might be concluded at an early hour.

Spectacles will immediately follow the short prelude sketch.

HISTORY WINNERS TO BE HONORED TUESDAY

Mable Arbuthnot Wins First With Best Paper.—Prizes Will Be Presented at Graduation Exercises.

The annual history contest, which is held every June, including eighth grade students of the public schools of this city, has been held and the set of fifteen winners picked. Out of a set of fifteen winners, Mable Arbuthnot of the Garfield school secured first place, thereby winning the beautiful medal annually given by the Teachers of the American Revolution.

Jessie Yahn of the Lincoln school won second place, and Peggie Smith of the Jefferson school third place.

The prizes will be awarded tomorrow evening at the opening of the musical program at the high school commencement exercises.

JANESVILLE MAN MARRIED IN CHICAGO ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

On Wednesday next W. H. Coen, a resident of this city, and an engineer on the Chicago & Northwestern road, will be united in marriage to Miss Edith Dulan of 3114 Warren avenue, Chicago. The ceremony will be performed in Chicago, and after a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Coen will make their home in Chicago. Relatives from here will go to Chicago to attend the ceremony.

THE CALL OF TODAY
BECKONS GRADUATES

NOBLE CHARACTER REQUIRED
FOR SUCCESS IN LIFE SAYS
REV. PARISOE.

PREPARATION NEEDED

Tells Members of Senior Class They Must Develop Their Own Opportunities.

Rev. George Edwin Parisoe in his address to the members of the graduating class of the First Presbyterian church last evening, pointed the way for attaining a success in life, through a good and noble character. His sermon subject was "The Call of Today," and his text was taken from Luke, 9:18: "What does it profit a man if he gains the whole world and loses his own soul?"

With rare eloquence, masterful delivery, and convincing sincerity Mr. Parisoe drove home his message. He spoke in part as follows:

"Each life has its own peculiar disposition, natural or acquired. Yet there is a tendency which has not out-run the ages. The tendency which I refer to is that force—moral or physical—is the result of mechanical influence, nature or habit which operates in developing the possibilities in human life. The unyielding tendency of the human heart beckons, pleads, urges us to develop our possibilities of life. There is great danger that we spring forward, anxious, willing, ready to push on too eagerly in the development of our lives, that we may lose the very things which we are seeking to develop."

"This evening I wish to direct your attention to the call of today. We are a restless people, alert with nervous energy, always anticipating the possibilities of life. As night follows day, we find it impossible to close our eyes to the call of today, which pleads for the development of our own possibilities. Life is a continuous answer; we are bound to stand up to something. The hours of the day, as they silently glide past, are full of offers and expectations. Time is it, the fruitless anxiety that we may make of it, everything or nothing. All of the past, with its sorrows, crimes and happenings, is but the reply which our fellows have created as their answer to the call of today.

"The call of today is a call to take all that we may possess—our imagination, industry, learning, love and prayers—and to weave them all upon life's loom. Yes, you and I may be the call of today, but the loom of life threads or weaving formulas but it all implies recognition of one basic truth with reference to personality, namely, the likeness of one individual to all others in the fundamental elements of life. The call of today is a call into activity, the perfecting into harmony of every faculty in us.

"Education is our guiding star. Education stimulates, directs our sympathies, reinforces our conscience, trains our will power, honorably disciplines the body in order that we may become servants of worthy purposes—and all with the view of producing character. "God made the world in which to live; undoubtedly God made the world that it might be enjoyed and used by man, but not that it should be enjoyed and used to the exclusion of the Maker of it. God made man chiefly for conversation and communication with Himself and when man prefers to occupy himself with the good things of life, that man is gaining the world, but at the same time losing his very soul.

"Think of the untold possibilities of our life. There are many who believe we may live and act as we please, but we may safely get the better of others, by ways, however crooked, provided they do not end in the penitentiary. Please do not misunderstand me. I do not belittle the value of brains. I do not underwrite the idiot. Yes, I know success often attends those who remember only as much of the ten commandments as is found in the penal statutes. Brillancy may go hand in hand with vice. Yet I warn you that after all the strongest force which makes individual success is character—a good character. The majority of successful men, owe whatever success they have attained, as much if not more to their character than to their brains.

"By far the greater number of failures have been due, not to the lack of capacity, or want of opportunity, but to the cold fact that when the person was put to test, his character failed. They proved unworthy of confidence. So, if character is not only a beautiful thing, but it is necessary in order to make the best of the opportunities the world has to offer.

"Character is God—character is righteousness, the shining jewel of life, that to which we all look upon which we admire and love. Character is the chasm which separates man from brute. It is the great gulf river which the brute cannot cross. Character is the link which binds us to God. Through a good character we clasp hands with the infinite and the eternal.

"One seldom sinks so low in the scale of humanity as not to respect and admire what good and virtue does. One has. A good name is chosen rather than great riches and loving favor, rather than silver and gold. A good name, good character, we long for it, we enjoy to see it in our homes, our friends and in all with whom we are thrown in contact. With it heaven may begin on earth; without it death is not needed for admission to hell.

"There are many who think it is enough to be smart, that brains are the only thing which counts in this world. Members of the senior class permit me to warn you; to caution, to inform you, that life is a place of education. We all instantly seek those things and places to partake of influences as will enable us to develop our lives into a goodly character.

"Life is a progress—not a station. There is no place for the shirker. You will not all become leaders of finance, art, industry, religion, or education. But each one of you may succeed in developing your life to its highest potential success. Will depend upon how conscientiously you believe that life is a school to develop your character, your faculties and powers. Even though you have no religion, you will be increasingly impressed that there must be a life beyond the arena of today—a life where the results of our training received here will be gathered up for a far more supreme existence.

"The fact remains, it is only under the influence of a faith in God that such conception of life's purposes as an education really, actually flourishes. If you do not make the most and best of your wares by finding God in it, and living for him, he has no use for the man who leaves a vacant trail—a sluggard.

"Out of all the hidden secrets of yesterday—to make our tomorrow's career—the today has come to us. The most potent fact in the Universe of God, for you and me, is the fact of our positive or negative reply to the call of today. Your today is beckoning, calling to you, to realize the possibilities of your life.

"Our schools exist because in the human race are individuals who are incomplete, but are capable of developing, because there are higher and lower kinds of life. Education gives us the benefits of experience, other than our own, and in advance of our own. The most important fact in education is that we are dealing always with a world of persons. Whatever ideal we place before us, that ideal can be realized only in personality, and in character.

"Members of the graduating class of 1914, we, your friends, are proud of you. Proud of the fact that you are so successfully closing your years of elementary education. All of you, we hope, may go on into the higher fields of education. Some of you, we know, would, but circumstances prevent it. Give these who use intelligence, strength for work, whatever and however it is.

"And now as you go out into the world of events and men, strive by

GRASS STIMULANT
NEEDED ON LAWNS

Nitrate of Soda Applied Once a Month Will Bring Satisfactory Results.

In the late spring, about a month after active grass growth has commenced on the lawn, it is desirable to apply a grass stimulant to keep the lawn in first-class condition. Nitrate of soda is a good fertilizer and will make the grass grow thickly with a rich dark green color that will show itself promptly after the application.

The landscape gardener of the United States department of agriculture advises that the best time to apply nitrate of soda is in the late spring, about the middle of May in the latitude of Washington, D. C.

The nitrate of soda should be applied just before a rain or a sprinkling with the hose. Under ordinary conditions it will keep the lawn at the vitality of the plant is low. The application of this fertilizer combined with careful watering (described in previous article) will prevent the parched appearance of the lawn during the dry hot summer season.

Using Fertilizer. When nitrate is applied during any dry period it should be used carefully. In can, however, be applied at any time if the nitrate of soda is now dissolved up fine before using, but it is safest to dissolve it in water. Because of a generally prevailing fear that this fertilizer may ruin a lawn if used carelessly, the department has been experimenting to see just how much nitrate of soda would have to be used in order to kill grass. These experiments seem to show that the use of soda can be used fairly extensively without causing injury, for attempts to kill grass with it were unsuccessful except when such large quantities as 400 pounds to an acre were used.

Although fertilization is a splendid thing for the upkeep of a lawn, it will never make up for a lawn soil that was poorly prepared in the first place. It is only when a lawn soil is properly prepared in the first place and enriched with stable manure, lime and bone phosphate that a lawn may be maintained in the best condition.

"You know I'm kind of glad to see the place again, and you know, I like this stew," and he proceeded to busy himself with the matter of eating—anything to gain time under Mary's merciless, persistent questioning.

"Have a biscuit," suggested Mary, "and—tell me why you came out here."

Slade looked longingly toward the window, as if he expected to find an inspiration for a suitable answer there.

"Why, the old rosebush out there yet, holding the fort!" he exclaimed.

"You Go!" Warned Mary.

"I must have a look at it," and leaving his dinner, he went over to the window.

Mary hurriedly refilled his plate with stew the moment his back was turned.

"I declare!" He was still enthusing over the rosebush. "Quite a bush!"

He was beginning to feel more at ease. He had the satisfied feeling that comes to every man when his stomach is full. He felt very benign toward Mary, even toward Katherine and Hayes.

"I'll tell you what I am going to do, Mary," he began. "You like this house—always did. Well, you can stay here. I won't oppose it. There's nothing in the world you want—I wouldn't give you—nothing. Now, what can I do for you? What can I—"

Mary shook her head and laughed quietly.

"Why, Mary!" Slade was distressed at having his patronizing advances treated in such a manner.

"Oh, Dan, Dan!" Mary laughed, mockingly, unable longer to conceal her feelings. Slade realized in an instant that Mary knew everything.

"Well, I'll tell you one thing!" he blurted out. "I never cared a button for that girl—if that's what you mean! I swear I didn't!"

"Who said you did, Dan?" Mary's manner was provokingly calm.

"I never did! I'm not that kind of a man, and you know it," he protested.

"Who's accusing you? I never mentioned her name. But, Dan, she's very young and very pretty, and I don't blame you as long as you were going to try another wife. You might as well have had one who was young and pretty."

Slade pook-pooked vigorously.

"I hope the next one you get will be just as pretty, for your sake."

"There isn't going to be a next one," protested Slade, after the manner of all men.

"Oh, yes there is; you've got the idea now. The mere fact that you missed this time will keep you at it."

"I've got enough," Slade saw that frankness was the only way out of it. "I'm not going to make a devilish fool of myself again."

"Don't let your coffee get cold," reminded Mary, tantalizingly. "Now, Dan, you wanted me to go away, and I will. I've made up my mind."

"But I don't want you to go away," Slade remonstrated. "We can arrange

He Took Her Hand Eagerly and Held It

everything right here and now. This determination of yours is pretty sudden, isn't it?"

"Not as sudden as your change of mind when you first came into this room today."

"Well, where are you going?"

"Oh, I don't know," Mary replied, indifferently. "What does become of divorced women?"

"Now, Mary, don't talk like that; it ain't natural from you." This time Slade was doing the pleading. "You can't go off alone like this."

"Oh, can't I? I could a week ago, or an hour ago. Why can't I now? I can't wait to pack my things."

Slade gazed at his wife in amazement. If the patient rug on which he had thoughtlessly trampled so long had suddenly been transformed into a snarling animal, Slade could not have been any more surprised.

"Why, Mary, see here," he began, then stopped. "Oh, h—l, what's the use? You meet me half way in the way I want to live, and you'd better come home. We'll open the house in town again, and we'll make the best of things. There! We'll make the best of things."

"How can we?" argued Mary. "If I was old-fashioned and behind the times and held you back a week ago, why wouldn't I now? Try as hard as I might, you said I couldn't help you. I'm just the same today as I was a week ago. I haven't changed a bit. I'm just the plain little old I always was. What's true Monday is true Tuesday. We can't get back to where we were once."

"You meet me half way and I'll do my part," Dan had never known her to be obstinate like this before. Usually his slightest wish had been her keenest desire.

"Dan, you wanted that divorce?" The question was ominous, but Slade had to admit the point.

"Well, you're going to get it!"

"But I don't want it now."

"You're going to have it, Dan Slade," and Mary's mouth set like a steel trap. "You're going to have it if I have to get it myself!"

"What do you want with a divorce when I'm willing to give it?" stormed Slade, losing his patience.

"How long have you been willing to give in, Dan? What did you come out here for?" She paused, but he did not answer. "You came to force me out of this house. Don't tell me you didn't, because I know. And I know why you didn't do it. You came in here and suddenly you got a look at that girl and me! And it staggered you! For once, something swept you off your feet! You knew then that I'd found it all out. You knew I knew everything. And now you've been thrown over by that girl. She's thrown you over! Between the two of us—you're caught. And that's the real reason that you're not standing here shaking your finger in my face and telling me to go out, to get out, to go."

Mary stopped for breath, and walked up and down the room before she proceeded with her blither denunciation.

"And the worst of it is that after the girl's gone you actually ask me to take yer back—to take yer back—just as they all do. It's another man 'come home to mother.' Well, here's one woman that's not going to 'take her husband back!' No, sir! If you pushed me aside for ambition, I might think it over, but you've pushed me aside for that girl's twenty-seven years of prettiness," and she pointed an accusing finger at the door through which Katherine Strickland had gone hand-in-hand with her sweetheart.

"That's what you've done—for twenty-seven years of youth, for twenty-seven years of figure and eyes and freshness and all the rest of it. You put me aside for a younger woman!" the very utterance almost lost Mary her courage, but she kept on. "You put me aside for a younger woman. Now, no matter what you do, you can't get me back!"

"Now, Mary," Slade begged, beginning to feel that he was losing everything worth while.

"I take off my ring," Mary continued, ignoring his interruption.

"Now it's ended," she finished as she laid the ring on the table.

Slade strode up to her in the manner which had kept her subdued all the 30 years of their married life. "You put that ring on again," he commanded. "It's yours! You put that ring on."

"No, sir! It's off for good." For the first time Mary's attitude was one of stubborn temper. She was enjoying complete mastery for the first time in her life. "Wild horses couldn't have got it off yesterday—I thought it was part of my nature! But now, now I'm going to ask you to go. I've got work to do. I'm closing the house. I'm closing it for good—forever."

Mary had said all she had to say. Now that her mind was made up, it was characteristic of her to turn to action. She started hurriedly and noisily to clear up the table, scraping the plates and piling them up ready to carry into the kitchen.

"For God's sake, Mary, don't!" protested Slade, too bewildered to know what to do or say.

"Go along," urged Mary, as she put the sugar bowl in its place on the sideboard.

"Mary, if you persist in this, I'll go back and I'll smash that house in town—I'll smash it to pieces," he threatened. "I'll sell it. I'll give it away—break it up! That's what made all this trouble! You know that! Trying to live up to that d—d house. You told me not to build it, and this is what I got for it."

"Go back and smash it. You've smashed other things that hurt me worse."

"Mary, you're not going to turn me out of this house where we've lived so long together?"

"You've turned yourself out. Go, now," Mary's wrath gathered force as she repeated her command.

"Ah, come now, Mary—"

"You go," warned Mary. "Before I say something I'll regret." She was scarcely hearing what Slade was saying now—her ears were full of the things he had said to her in her own home, and that night in Senator Strickland's library.

"Mary!" The one word was full of protest and a plea for forgiveness.

"Go before I say it!" It was all Mary could do to speak quietly.

"Mary!" again the word spoke volumes.

"No use," she replied, as she picked up a pile of dishes. "You pushed me aside for a younger woman, and now you go," and with both hands full of dishes she kicked the kitchen door open with an angry foot, and proceeded to busy herself at the sink.

"Mary! See here!" he called. There was no reply.

He walked absently to the sugar bowl selected a lump of sugar and started to eat it, brushing one hand with the other, and then, still absent-minded, ignored the napkin within easy reach and wiped his fingers down the front of his coat. It was the old Dan Slade, a reversion to type.

Then he quietly picked up his hat and gloves and coat. Mary heard him going, and came back into the room.

"Dan," she said as she stretched out her hand to him. "I can't hate you—I just can't. We're going to say good-by like two old friends." He took her hand eagerly and held it. After a moment she pulled it away and resumed picking up the dinner things. Slade looked at her longingly for a moment, then quietly opened the door and was gone.

Dinner Stories

When Edison was living in the country a visitor said to him:

"By the way, your front gate needs repairing. It was all I could do to get it open. You ought to have it greased, or something."

Edison laughed. "Oh, no," he said. "Why not?" asked the visitor.

"Because," was the reply, "every one who comes through that gate pumps two buckets of water into the tank on the roof."

"Did you drink the water very hot an hour before each meal, as I prescribed?" the doctor asked.

"I tried hard," the patient wailed, "but I had to stop too soon. I drank for thirty-five minutes, and it made me feel like a balloon."

Two Texas doctors met on the street.

"I feel sorry for you. You ought not to be out in this kind of weather. You are a sick man," said Dr. Blister.

"I am not feeling very well," replied Dr. Soonover.

"What doctor is treating you?"

"I am prescribing for myself."

"You shouldn't do that. You are liable to be arrested for attempted suicide."

THE FOLLY OF SUPERSTITION.
THE enlightened twentieth century sometimes speaks patronizingly about the "ignorance and superstition of the middle ages."

One would think there was no such thing as superstition nowadays. When my neighbor's little girl, who is four, takes a patronizing air at the humor of her, and calls it "a cunning baby," we are amused at the superstition of the middle ages, it is almost as absurd. For one of us are still children as far as superstition goes.

And not only ignorant people, either, but folks who are, or at least ought to be, well educated.

An acquaintance of mine who has two lovely children, a kind husband and the best of prospects, has recently become very much depressed. No, her husband has not been unfaithful to her, her children are not ill, she has no financial trouble. Nothing real is the matter. It is simply that she has broken a mirror and is worrying over the portent of death within a year, or of seven days' hard luck. She has actually made her husband and family miserable over the silly little accident. In vain they try to reason her out of it. She will not listen to reason. She insists that she has never known it to fail. Well, I have. Five years ago I broke a mirror, and no one in my family died within a year.

Moreover, I have a friend who says that when he was at a camp with a college crowd one summer, they each bought the little round hand mirrors, as there were no others. And he is sure they broke at least half a dozen of them without any bad results.

Again, a pleasant gathering was entirely upset the other evening when a woman discovered that thirteen had sat down to the table. She ran into the other room and cried. Order was restored, but the evening was spoiled. Several of the party, who sat down to the table were elderly, so I suppose the chances are against the hysterical woman will surely say, "I told you so. It's all because of that damned thirteen at the table."

And yet she is a Christian.

What is the connection, you say?

Well, if she is a Christian she must believe that a kind and just God governs the Universe. Surely she cannot believe that he would punish people for sitting down thirteen at a table, and equally, of course, she cannot believe it would happen without his permission. Not a supernatural power can be at all. And if it cannot happen either with or without God's permission, how can it be at all?

Christianity and superstitions like these are absolutely inconsistent. The woman who stands for Christianity owes it to her faith to come out of the middle ages, put aside such unworthy superstitions and be free.

HEART AND HOME STUFF

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Our society

is to have a Japanese social next week and I'm on the social committee, so

I turn to you for help. Can you suggest any games that may be played out-of-doors? Boys and girls are from 17 to 20 years old and we expect to have quite a large crowd. Thanking you for your kindness.

H. A.

Kite flying is a popular Japanese sport. Why not invest in a lot of these odd-shaped kites and have a contest, then test the young folks have made. Have Japanese prizes for the best kite and the one who is most successful in kite flying. Have separate prizes for boys and for girls, as the boys may excel in this sport. You can get favors at a Japanese store.

They might be Japanese parasols, fans, little ivory elephants, Chinese illies, etc.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Would you give me the recipe for the following:

A good fudge, sea foam, peanut brittle and devil's food and a good brown frosting, not chocolate?

E. G.

Maple fudge is very nice. One-half cup granulated sugar, one and one-half cups maple sugar, one cup milk. Heat together, add one ounce crushed chocolate and butter, of an egg. Bake until it hardens when dropped in cold water. Take from fire, add one teaspoonful vanilla and beat until it begins to thicken, then pour in buttered tins and mark in squares as it is cooling. Can add nuts or cocoanut as wished.

Sea Foam—Two cups brown sugar

(or one-half cup white), three-quarters cup water, white of one egg beaten stiff. Boil sugar and water with hot water, as most recipes say. Use four enough for a moderately stiff batter. Bake in a loaf and cover with boiled icing when cold. This makes a beautiful dark, rich looking cake.

THE KIRKMAN CABINET

Women Worth While

MRS. THOMAS J. WALSH.

By Selene Armstrong Harmon.

A certain phrase, worn threadbare,

becomes rejuvenated and vitalized

when applied to Mrs. Thomas J.

Walsh, wife of Senator Walsh of Montana. Mrs. Walsh is a woman who "does things." Under her energetic leadership as president of the Montana Federation of Women's clubs,

the women of that state were instituted in securing the passage of important health laws, inaugurating and forwarding a fight against tuberculosis, and in popularizing the demand for the erection of the present state tuberculosis sanatorium for Montana.

Mrs. Walsh is one of several clever women in official life in Washington whose grasp on public affairs is strengthened by a knowledge of law.

Like Mrs. William Jennings Bryn-ton, she has made a thorough study of law, not with any thought of entering upon the practice of the legal profession, but in order to sympathize more intelligently with her husband's work and interests. She herself declines to be interviewed on strictly personal subjects, but Mrs. Walsh's friends will tell you that she possesses unusual musical gifts. While a resident of Chicago she was a member of one of the finest vocal clubs in America, an organization with the highest musical standards. She is also particularly fond of languages and still keeps up her French and German.

To both Senator and Mrs. Walsh

the city of Helena, which they have so many friends and happy associations, will make the steak tender.

Usually spend their summers, however, in Glacier park, one of our beautiful national parks too little known to the American public.

Their bungalow was designed by

Mrs. Walsh and is built entirely of cedar logs. Its name, "Lamonti Lodge," means, in the jargon of the Chinook Indians, whose romantic country lies nearby, "The Mountain Lodge." The Walshes were among the first to recognize the superb scenic beauty of Glacier park and erected a summer residence there before the region became a national park.

Their bungalow is on the shore of Lake MacDonald, with a background of mountains and giant trees. The view from "Lamonti Lodge" is marvelously lovely, including, as it does the splendid glaciers from which the park takes its name. Boating, bathing, fishing and mountain climbing are some of the recreations, which guests of Senator and Mrs. Walsh enjoy there. Their eastern and western friends are always sure of a warm welcome at the lodge, and many people have made their first acquaintance with the beauties of Glacier park

while on a visit to the Walsh bungal-ow.

Senator and Mrs. Walsh have a daughter, Genevieve, who, while one of the debutantes of the congress-sional set, and a girl who loves dearly

the things that other girls love, has also some of the serious interests of her mother. She was graduated recently from Vassar, and is a Phi Beta Kappa girl. While at college, Miss

Walsh managed to continue the study of her beloved violin, and was concert-master at Vassar for two years.

She writes well, and a recent magazine contains an article by her on the beauties of Glacier park. Both

Mrs. Walsh and her young daughter have made a wide circle of friends in Washington. Loyal as they are to the west, they have at the same time entered into life in Washington with a zeal and a sincerity that have made them extremely popular.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

A tiny sprinkling of sugar placed over a layer of meat in a steak pudding will make the steak tender.

Toughness of angel cake is often due to the fact that the eggs are not beaten properly. They should be beaten so stiff that they will stand alone.

Raw lean meat will remove a bee sting.

When storing clothing for the summer, try sprinkling whole cloves

among the articles instead of moth balls. This will keep the moths away and the odor is far from disagreeable.

THE TABLE.

Beans and Tomato Soup—Soak a quart of beans eight hours. Drain and soak in warm water for another hour. Drain and put into the soup pot with a gallon of cold water;

bring to a boil slowly, add half a pound of chopped fat salt pork and a bay leaf. Simmer gently for four hours. Then press and run the soup through a sieve. Return to the pot with a quart of canned tomatoes and sweeten with two teaspoonfuls of granulated sugar. Boil half an hour, strain the soup through a colander and place over the fire. Thicken it with a tablespoonful of flour rubbed

Lest You Forget---
When You Graduate

THEN WHAT?

A wrong decision now means a lifetime of regret. Consider well all avenues of possible success. Investigate carefully. Ask the men who know. Then choose, and having chosen, with courage, and confidence, set out and WIN.

THINK OF IT!

750 dollars—the average lawyer's income.
1400 dollars—the average doctor's income.
1000 dollars—the average dentist's income.
And that too after an investment of from $2000 to $4000 in a College Education and at a cost of four of the best years of life!

NOW THINK OF THIS!

It is a poor business man who is not enjoying an annual income in excess of $2000—$5000 is a very common thing! $10000, $25000, yes, $50000 are such common incomes in the business world as to cause neither surprise nor comment.

CERTAINLY BUSINESS IS KING.

Who would limit himself to the rewards of a professional career when such big prizes are calling for men of red blood, daring and enterprise.

Business places no limit to your success. If you choose business you can if you will, before you are 30 years of age, be worth $10000.

So when you choose your career this summer—don't limit yourself—give your ability and intelligence range to work.

Only good schools can use this seal.

Want Ad Philosophy

I journeyed back by stage-coach down that old familiar road, and tears unbidden came into my eyes. Reading this you may think that so long as I had won what this world is pleased to claim a fair amount of success, I might have journeyed back to the home of my childhood via automobile. My fancy and the country where I was bound for said the stage-coach.

I was making a day of it in pretty near every sense of the word, along the lines of retrospection. I even had in my pocket a few of the little trinkets my parents had given me in the years that lay far behind me. With reluctance I returned them to my pocket as the driver pulled up at a little jerk-water station to allow the horses a drink and rest. I entered the little store for a cigar. It was not until the next day I discovered that in stuffing back my keepsakes I had lost a little ring that my Mother had given to me to remember the night that I had proudly stood up in School and explained to a patient audience, just what was the matter with Mark Anthony.

I had not lived in Chicago for thirty years for nothing. I promptly advertised in our little handbill of a paper for my keepsake. Yes! I found it, for everyone reads the want ads. do you?
